EDWARDSVILLE — Another semester has ended at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville, and the holiday season is now in full force. The holidays are the perfect time for friends, family and colleagues to gather around, spend time with one another, and share or perhaps create new traditions.

On this week's episode of Segue, SIUE's premier radio show, SIUE Chancellor Randy Pembroke, PhD, will interview several guests from around the university community and beyond, and ask about their holiday traditions.

The Segue Holiday Special will air at 9 a.m. on Sunday, Dec. 23, on WSIE 88.7 FM The Sound and siue.edu/wsie.

Pembroke will interview the following guests for this special episode:

- Regional Superintendent of Schools for Madison County Bob Daiber
- Charlie Brennan, SIUE alum and award-winning KMOX broadcaster
- Courtney Boddie, interim director of the Center of Student Diversity and Inclusion

- Edwardsville Mayor Hal Patton
- Ronda Sauget, executive director of the Leadership Council of Southwestern Illinois
- Miriam Rocca, associate vice chancellor for student affairs at SIUE

Guests will share what holidays they observe as well as the traditions they choose to do annually. The guests will also share some of their funniest stories or mishaps from over the years, as well as their favorite holiday memories.
