

Energy and the Environment

Physics 115-FR1

In this course we will look at energy from a scientific perspective. The goal is to understand how various energy generation systems work, including "alternative" sources such as wind, solar, and nuclear power. We will pay particular attention to the effects of our use of energy on the environment, leading to air and water pollution, radiation, and global warming.

For more information, contact Professor Abdullatif Hamad ahamad@sive.edu