Québec Travel- Study

2 July – 7 August 2022
approximate student cost for 5 weeks including airfare $3800-$4000 (SIUE tuition extra)

Earn 6 SIUE credit hours in French while living in beautiful, historic Québec City and studying at the prestigious Université Laval, the second-oldest institution to offer higher education and the first to do so in French in North America. This five-week (approximately 2 July – 7 August) faculty-led study abroad program provides a solid linguistic and cultural experience in an environment which is almost 100% French-speaking and offers the best of both worlds: European charm and North American efficiency. The city of Québec is a well-preserved historic site where students will have convenient access to pleasant dining, shopping, and cultural experiences.

Students will take weekday morning classes at the Université Laval where they will be placed in French language courses (conversation, corrective phonetics, grammar) corresponding to their level of proficiency as determined by a placement test. Your Québec experience will also include activities organized by the French program at Laval such as short excursions within the walls of the Old Town (le Vieux-Québec) and longer trips outside the city on weekends, as well as socio-cultural workshops such as theater, folklore, choir, and cooking.

SIUE faculty member Dr. Debbie Mann, whose research includes topics in Québec history, literature and popular culture, will be onsite to provide a framework of linguistic support as well as supplemental instruction in the culture and history of Québec in order to maximize the benefits of the travel-study for students. Graduate and undergraduate credit for further information contact

Dr. Debbie Mann
Dept. of Foreign Languages

Peck 2328
phone 650-2314
jmann@siue.edu

application deadline
February 18, 2022