Fall season is here
Tour, expand knowledge, create
Learn and grow with us!

Whether you regularly practice the Japanese art of Haiku, or you would need to Google “What is a Haiku?” like I did, learning is indeed for life. Learning and new experiences are linked to positive mental health benefits and overall wellness. We are pleased to offer many courses that will help you expand your horizons.

Speaking of the Japanese culture, you will notice that we are offering Japanese language classes, as well as Japanese calligraphy and a Japanese book club. Italian and Spanish courses are also returning this fall.

If you are looking to create something, consider our guitar, ceramic wheel throwing or award-winning Artisan bread courses. Additionally, our tours this fall include Haunted Alton, History of Manufacturing in St. Louis, and a new venue for tours and tastings.

Professional development opportunities abound at SIUE. We offer fully online undergraduate and master’s degrees, as well as short-term certificates. We have many non-credit opportunities to learn new skills that can help you advance or transition in the workplace.

Our staff at SIUE Online Services and Educational Outreach wishes you all the best this fall season.

Radiation Warfare: Secret Cold War Military Experiments on Civilian Populations in North America

The U.S. Radiological Weapons program was a top-priority research and development program by the U.S. military during the Cold War, however little was known about this program until a few years ago. To test the viability of radiological weapons, the U.S. Army planned large-scale human subject experiments, including open-air tests of radioactive materials in urban, suburban and rural areas in North America. St. Louis was the Army’s top choice for secret open-air experiments, and low-income areas within the city were purposely selected by the Army for open air experiments. What do we know about this program and where did we see pockets of resistance to secret open-air Cold War experiments?

The Sacred Marriage of Heaven and Earth in Han Dynasty Art and Architecture

The Han Dynasty (202 BCE-9 CE, 25-220 CE) was the second in a series of dynasties that span China’s long imperial history up until the 1911 nationalist revolution. Han is considered the Golden Age of Chinese civilization that originated many of the elements of Chinese culture. At the core of Chinese symbolism are the geometric shapes of circle and square as metaphors for heaven and earth, respectively. These shapes appear alone or together in art forms from architecture to textiles. This presentation will interpret circle and square symbolism in Han Dynasty art forms, and then explore examples of them in art forms of more recent times.

OFF-CAMPUS AND CORPORATE PARTNERSHIPS

siue.edu/corporate

SIUE partners with organizations to offer educational and training opportunities for their employees. Through a unique contractual agreement, credit and non-credit opportunities are available to your staff so they can earn advanced credentials without ever receiving a bill from SIUE. Partnership students benefit from curriculum specifically designed for the working professional. If you do not see your employer on this list, we will be pleased to work with your human resources department to add your organization to our growing list of organizations who recognize the value of investing in their employees’ professional development.

Since its start in 2017, the SIUE Successful Communities Collaborative (SSCC) has partnered with 9 different cities and villages in Madison and St. Clair counties. Over 800 SIUE students from approximately 25 disciplines have been engaged thus far with partners through community-identified projects that are embedded in their courses. Additionally, SSCC coordinates two special projects – CODES: Community-Oriented Digital Engagement Scholars initiative and SIUE’s Truth, Racial Healing and Transformation (TRHT) Campus Center.

CODES introduces first-generation, Black, Latinx and/or Pell-eligible students to digital community engagement. CODES’ first cohort of scholars began in fall 2022. CODES Scholars work in small research teams that focus on seemingly unsolvable problems, such as climate change or poverty's manifestations across rural and urban environments. The project is led by Jessica DeSpain, PhD, professor in the Department of English Language and Literature and co-director of the SIUE Interdisciplinary Research and Informatics (IRIS) Center, and Connie Frey Spurlock, PhD, associate professor in the Department of Sociology and director of SSCC. Visit siue.edu/codes for more information. CODES is currently recruiting for fall 2024. Interested applicants can learn more at siue.edu/codes.

The SIUE TRHT Campus Center seeks to prepare the next generation of leaders to confront racism and dismantle the belief in a hierarchy of human value. The integration of TRHT and SSCC results in more equitable access to high impact practices (HIPs) for SIUE students because community-identified needs are embedded into courses in which students are enrolled. This is important because HIPs are recognized for their positive impact on retention and learning outcomes for students across many backgrounds. As community and campus stakeholders collaborate and achieve goals together, truths can be revealed, authentic relationships can be formed, and racial equity can be advanced.

If your organization is interested in partnering with SSCC or TRHT, contact Connie Frey Spurlock at (618) 650-2945 or cfrey@siue.edu.
