The All Faculty Meeting, sponsored by the Faculty Senate and called by Faculty Senate President Rhonda Comrie, will provide attendees with information about the future of online teaching and learning at SIUE and make them more aware of their role in this process.

During this interactive and collaborative workshop, faculty from a variety of disciplines will discuss their teaching and learning experiences, members of ITS' Instructional Design and Learning Technologies (IDLT) Center will moderate discussions about course design and delivery, and all attendees will participate in a discussion about outcomes that will help the University move forward in furthering the online learning initiative at SIUE.

Highlights

- Opening Statement by Chancellor Julie Furst-Bowe
- A panel presentation featuring SIUE faculty members discussing their experiences in the web-enhanced, blended, and online learning environments and sharing best practices for design and delivery
- A series of round table discussions involving attendees, faculty presenters, and members of the IDLT Center focusing on questions and challenges related to designing, delivering, and supporting web-enhanced, blended, and online courses
- A large group discussion of points raised in the small group conversations, resulting in a set of outcomes that will ideally enable attendees to take the first (or next) step in developing courses for blended or online delivery

Conference Center, Morris University Center
Light refreshments will be served, so please, RSVP to: vkruse@siue.edu by March 12, 2013

Questions? Please, call ext. 2770